My weekly messages are like a mullet—fun up front and business on the back end. See the basics below and the details below that. Even the basics have hyperlinks. If I am anything, I am consistent. To know me is to have reasonable expectations of me.

I hope that you are managing yourself in a manner that you prefer. If not, breathe deeply, forgive yourself, and reach out to a resource for support. Do not worry about choosing the right resource. Resources are good at making referrals to each other.

I am out of the office beginning noon today (Thursday, September 29), tomorrow (Friday, September 30) and Monday, October 3

The upper division MCEN advisor will manage my drop-ins Friday and Monday.

I will read and respond to e-mail sent after 11:59 and 30 seconds today on Tuesday.

Friday, Oct 7 at 11:59 PM is the deadline to add and drop classes through R'Web registration

A department can end a wait list at any time between today and Friday, Oct 7 without offering you a seat

MyForms opens Saturday, Oct 8 at 12:01 am to make enrollment adjustments

Drop-ins change to appointments in weeks 3-5

Proper email protocol results in faster response times

R'Web Add/Drop Deadline

- If you’re waitlisted for a class and under 12 units, get a new class NOW
- Waitlists close and drop unenrolled students
- Send email regarding waitlist class concerns

WTH is an enrollment adjustment...

- A change made to your schedule after R'Web registration closes
- Adding a class, dropping a class, changing the grading basis
- Email with questions

Drop-ins vs. Appointments

- Drop-ins are for quick questions and high volume times
- Appointments are for in depth matters
- Not sure what is quick or in depth? We figured it out for you

Emailing Me

- Do not send email to my work email account
- I won’t see it because it shouldn’t be there or it went to spam
- bcoeadvising@engr.ucr.edu is a routing system
- Incorrect subject line formats route to incorrect places
- My email response time deserves awards

Type to you soon. Midterms and fall registration will begin before you know. The quarter system ain’t a joke, but it sure is funny. BTW, so am I. 😊
Tara Brown
Assistant Director, BS + MS & Learning Community Coordinator
Academic Advisor MCEN FR & SO & Students in Transition
BCOE Office of Undergraduate Student Academic Affairs
310 Skye Hall
University of California, Riverside tbrown@engr.ucr.edu
BCOE-Building a Community Of Engineers
tarab@ucr.edu on Zoom or Google Chat